Pergamano is basically about using different tools to “stretch” the special parchment paper to create shades from grey to white through flocking, pressing or embossing.

Use the scan of the card below as a guide when embossing. All embossing is done on the reverse side.

Method:

- Place the pattern under the parchment paper and hold in position with cellotape. Trace the entire design using Tinta white ink.
- Trace the fold line with the white pencil.
- Emboss flower leaves first with hockey stick and then the tip of every leaf with the medium ball tool. The parchment paper will turn varying shades of white depending on the pressure you use.
- Emboss the leaves with flock movements from the centre using the large embossing tool.
- Score the fold line with medium ball tool.
- Perforate with 2-needle and/or straight four tool along the edge of the pattern, as shown on the card.
- Cut V shapes into the 2-needle perforations.
- Fold card.
